
FOREWORD

It is my great pleasure to announce second issue of the international scientific journal “Annual of ISPJR”2016, especially because this year it is the 40-years anniversary of its publishing.

In this four decades the “Annual of ISPJR” promotes scientific research results, covers the social sciences and humanities, interdisciplinary research and cross-functional issues. With on line publishing twice a year and in accordance with the concept of open access, the Annual has become part of Macedonian and world science scene where promotes and actively contributes to social research.

In this issue main fields that have been covered are from: political science and human rights, sociology, law, organizational science, human resource management, entrepreneurial management, communication, new media, cyber culture, social development and other areas in social sciences. All papers have been selected by double-blind peer review from two experts from the proper field.

I hope that this edition of the “Annual of ISPJR” will reach as many readers and will attract the attention and the interest of the scientific and general public in the country, the region and broader.
